MISS BOSHER'S ADDRESS

Former Abbot Teacher Speaks at South Church on Her Mission Work in Honolulu

The regular quarterly meeting of the Women's Union of the South church was held on Thursday afternoon. Following the business session a very interesting account of her work in Honolulu was given by Miss Mabelle E. Boshier, formerly of Andover and for several years a teacher at Abbot Academy. Miss Boshier is at present connected with Kawaiahao Seminary in Honolulu, and is now at her home on a furlough. She spoke in part as follows:

There are so many things that I want to tell you! I could talk for hours on the wonderful climate of Hawaii, the gorgeous semi-tropical vegetation, the interesting trips to extinct and active volcanoes, and the delightful social life in this Paradise of the Pacific, but Miss Abbott has asked me to tell you about my own mission work in Honolulu.

sponsible for this new venture, but consented to appoint its trustees. Thirty-six acres of land were secured in Manoa valley, one of the most picturesque valleys in Honolulu. Mrs. J. B. Atherton offered to build the dormitory for Kawaiahao, in memory of her husband; Mr. George N. Wilcox of Kanai, a personal friend of Mr. Damon, consented to build the hall for Mills School.

Atherton Hall was completed two years before Mills School Hall, and in the fall of 1908 I began my administration of what is now commonly called "The New Kawaiahao." New, indeed it was! A beautiful new building of lava rock, costing $75,000, and large enough to accommodate 125 students; and entirely new corps of teachers, all from the states and unfamiliar with island conditions. There never was a newer, more inexperienced set of women that ever attempted to open a school in Honolulu! Nor was there ever a more courageous and enthusiastic set of women! Most of them, like myself, had accepted their positions with little definite knowledge of what was of arranging the work list. This general housework becomes a prominent part in the training of every child. To divide the varied tasks among 125 girls, giving each child the work that is fitted to her physical strength, and at the same time, the work that she needs for her best all-round development, is no easy undertaking. The girls of the VIII Grade do the cooking, both for the teachers and for the girls. This is done under the supervision of the house-keeper, who is a graduate of a school of Domestic Science, and her assistant. Then eighth grade girls have special lessons in cooking once each week. There are seventeen tables to be set up and cleared, dishes to be washed, office, reception rooms, class-rooms, teachers' rooms, Assembly Hall, corridors and dormitories to be swept and dusted every day. The entire building is mopped twice every week. All this work is done under the direction of the teachers. Every instructor takes her share of the supervision, and the children are graded in this housework as in the text-book work of the class-room.

lowing case. One beautiful afternoon, Miss Davidson, the humane officer, appeared, leading by the hand the prettiest, most adorable half-white little girl of six summers. "Will you take her?" said Miss Davidson. "Why, how can I?" I replied. "You know, we are full to overflowing—and besides we do not take the children as young as Rose Elizabeth."

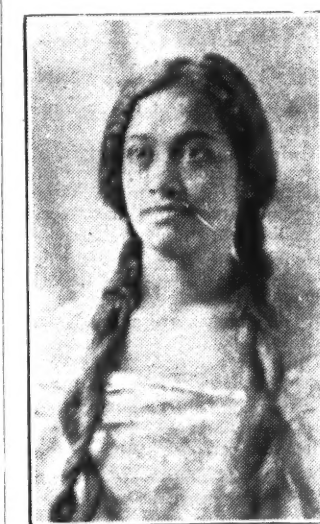

THE CHINESE HAWAIIAN GIRL

"Well, what shall I do with her?" Miss Davidson continued. "I heard that there was a little girl living in one of the houses at Iwilei (a notoriously bad section of the city where the prostitutes make their headquarters); I went down there, and this is what I found. While the mother, a white woman, was living with her husband, a white man, Rose Elizabeth was born. The father needed only to look at her rich, dark brown skin to be convinced that the child was not his. But because the child was a girl, he said that he would keep her and care for her. He is dead. The mother has gone straight to the bad! I shall have the courts take the child from her, and give her to you or to me. If you will take her, Mrs. John Galt will pay all her expenses here."

Rose Elizabeth is mine! Had I not taken her, she would have been sent either to the Salvation Army Home, or to the Girls' Industrial School—which corresponds with our Reform School.

We have all types of girls. From the home of the Hawaiian minister, whose salary is pitifully small, comes the strong, womanly girl, eager to do everything that the school offers; the Japanese plantation laborer sends his child to us, to get her away from the many temptations of camp life; from the Chinese temple comes the daughter of the woman who keeps the fires burning on the altar before her heathen gods,—to learn of the Christ; straight from Korea comes the young girl, who, when she has completed her education, will return to Korea to be a teacher among her own people; the Porto-Rican, who works for $4.00 a month and has a family of six children to support asks us to care for his oldest girl; from far away Naru—an island in the South Seas—a German father and Naru mother, send their little Miriam to remain with us indefinitely. A happy, happy family we are—of all races and all creeds. The Korean girls attend the Methodist church (the Methodist church has charge of the mission work among the Koreans), but girls of other races—whether they are Roman Catholics or Later-Day Saints—while in the school attend the Congregational church of their own mother tongue. Two special cars take them to church every Sunday.

Their missionary society, the Lima Kokua, meets once each month. Their yearly offerings for work in the home and foreign fields amounts to about $400.

You may be asking—is it all worth while? Do not the children return to their holokus, poi and raw fish?

It would not be strange, if out of 125 girls, one or two proved weak sisters. But the average girl, trained in a mission school, makes good.

During her course in school, we hear pleasant reports of how she spends her vacation. Word comes that as soon as she reached home, the

Courtesy Manchester Union BEAUTIFUL SCHOOL BUILDING WHERE MISS BOSHER TAUGHT

My own work is so humble in comparison with all the real missionary work that is being done there, and in comparison with the great movements for civic righteousness that are stirring into action the thinking people of Honolulu and the islands in general, that I wish that I might tell you about our Central Union church, our missionary societies, the Hawaiian Board and Palama settlement, as well as the work that is being done in our own mission schools. Kawaiahao Seminary which is the Girls' Department of the Mid-Pacific Institute.

A short time ago I was asked to tell the boys of a Boy's club, at the Y. M. C. A. Association in Manchester, about the life in Hawaii. Before I began, a youngster shouted, "Say, ever seen a cannibal eat a man?"

Now, I am going to pre-suppose a certain amount of knowledge on your part. The early missionary history of the Sandwich Islands, ought to be familiar to you. The islands owe much, yes very much, to our own missionaries sent out by the American Board in 1819. Not only did these brave men and women take the story of the Christ to a nation without a religion, but once there, they gave the nation a written language, laws, and a system of education.

The progress of the educational work from 1820 to 1864, the date of the founding of Kawaiahao Seminary is a story in itself. At this time, 1864, Dr. and Mrs. Luther Gulish had gathered into their home several Hawaiian girls who needed a home even more than they needed an education. Soon the home became too small for all the girls who clamored for admission, and it was thought wise to incorporate a school, move into a larger house, and send for a lady principal. Miss Lydia Bingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Bingham, who had gone out with his first band of missionaries, consented to leave her school in Ohio and to go to Honolulu, as the first principal of Kawaiahao Seminary. After six years of faithful work in the school, Miss Bingham married Rev. Titus Coan, of Hilo, Hawaii. Mrs. Coan returned to Honolulu, after Mr. Coan's death, where she still lives. I count her among my truest and most helpful friends.

The history of the school from 1864 to 1906 is one of steady progress, often under most trying circumstances. With the coming to the islands of many Chinese and Japanese families, to work on the sugar plantations, Kawaiahao opened its doors to girls of all races. The school soon outgrew the first building and moved into a larger dormitory. Principals and teachers came and went with kaleidoscopic rapidity. During these years the school was receiving help from the Hawaiian Evangelical Association, the mission board that continued the work so well established by our American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

In 1906 a group of prominent business and professional men decided to incorporate a new school, to be called the Mid-Pacific Institute, taking Kawaiahao Seminary as the Girl's Department, and Mills School, the private mission school of Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Damon, mostly Chinese and Japanese boys, as the Boy's Department. The Hawaiian Board felt that it could not be financially responsible for this new venture, but expected of them, but with the feeling that there was work to be done, good hard work, but work that was quite worth while.

Kawaiahao Seminary has 125 girls of all races, Hawaiian, and part Hawaiian, Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Portuguese, Porto Rican, Spanish, Filipino, South Sea, and last year, one pure white. Their ages range from 7 to 20. You see, we are most cosmopolitan!

We do class-room work in English from the 1st grade, through the 8th grade, fitting the girls for the High school or the Normal school. The language of the play house is also English. The Chinese, Japanese and Korean girls study their own languages under the guidance of a trained native teacher.

Along with the class-room work, and of equal importance, runs the industrial training. Each child, above the third grade, has instruction in sewing for one hour each day under the guidance of a graduate of a school of Domestic Arts. The little tots in the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd grades sew for one half hour each day. A special teacher has charge of the instrumental and vocal music. The chorus work is a prominent feature in the life of the school, and it is always a pleasure to have the girls sing their Hawaiian melodies.

A graduate nurse has charge of the health of the school, and teaches physiology in the grades from the 4th through the 8th, and directs the gymnasium work. She also gives instruction to the members of the 8th grade in simple methods of nursing and emergency work.

Follow with me the student body for a day:

Monday is the holiday, the morning of which is given up to washing. Ironing is done on Thursday and Saturday afternoons. Their meals are very simple. For breakfast they have rice or cooked cereal, two bananas, two slices of bread and a hot drink. No butter; for luncheon, two slices of bread, poi, for the Hawaiians, rice for the Orientals, one banana, hash or dried beef or fish; sometimes a glass of milk; the dinner consists of a beef or mutton stew, cooked with vegetables and sweet potatoes, (they will not eat the Irish potatoes), poi and rice. As a great treat, they may have a bread pudding or fruit. Simple as this menu may seem to you, there is always a generous amount of food, and to the average girl the meal is a feast when compared to her home table.

We have no servants in the house. Two Japanese boys care for the grounds and clean the basements. The entire work of the school from the kitchen to the third floor dormitory is done by the student body. One of the most perplexing tasks that fall to my lot, as principal, is that

The work list changes three times during the year; a girl who has washed dishes for three months, goes upstairs for general housework and vice-versa. If a girl remains with us for three or four years and finally finishes the eighth grade she will have received a fairly thorough course in what is generally called Domestic Science. She will be able to sweep, mop, dust, make a bed, care for a child, cook simple meals, wash and iron, cut and make her own underclothes and dresses.

How many of our white children when they graduate from the eighth grade of our public schools, can claim the same efficiency?

The object of the school is to send into the world useful, Christian women. The moral and religious side of the child's nature is not neglected. The average Hawaiian girl inherits a tendency to be unmoral not immoral. There is a vast difference between the immoral white woman and the un-moral Hawaiian girl.

Through simple stages in nature study and physiology, the children are led up to the subject of eugenics.

At morning chapel, in Bible classes, in church and Sunday school, they hear the old, old, sweet story of the redeeming love of the Christ. We try to make the religious life of the school strong, but normal. They are taught to live by the "Golden Rule."

We have a credit system, not a system of demerits. A contractor who was working on our faculty tennis court said to his wife, "Why, do you know, I have worked around that school for a whole week, and I haven't heard a child cry." I can honestly say that I have been in homes where I have seen more scrapping among two or three white children in one hour than I often see in a week at Kawaiahao. Of course, they quarrel—yes, even fight,—and a few of them can be exasperatingly naughty—and often the naughtier they are, the dearer we love them. Ah, for we do love them, these children of all races and all conditions of life,—love them with a love akin to mother love.

We are a mission school, although we are not under any Board of Missions. The average girl cannot afford to pay the $50.00 which is all that we ask for her board and tuition for the school year of ten months. Many children remain with us for twelve months. The school is their only home. In compiling statistics for the social survey which was recently made, I found that out of 125 girls 40 were being supported entirely by friends who were interested in their development; 45 were being partially paid for by patrons, while only 31 had parents or relatives who were able to pay all the school expenses.

The Mid-Pacific Institute now owns about fifty-one acres of land, two beautiful school buildings—Atherton Hall, valued at $75,000 and Mills School Hall at $115,000—but she possesses only the small endowment of $85,000. The running expenses are met by generous gifts from friends of the school—all island people.

The school's greatest need now is an addition to the endowment fund—and a preparatory school for boys and girls between the ages of 5 and 11.

We are not supposed to take children under eight years of age, but it is often hard to refuse, as in the fol-whole family was seen in the throes of house-cleaning, floors were cleaned, windows washed, and the "old man," her father, even bestirred himself enough to mend the fence!

The average girl leaves us to go to the Normal School, where she fits herself to be a teacher (often boarding with us during her course at the Normal), or to be a mother's helper, to work in a doctor's office, to do general housework, to earn one dollar a day at plain sewing—or to make a home for herself and husband. Girls in tropical lands marry young. We encourage early marriage—as the home life offers a protection that she might not otherwise have.

One cannot carry the burdens and responsibilities of a large school alone,—or without the support and aid of a loyal faculty and a Board of Trustees thoroughly in sympathy with the work. Four of the women who started with me four years ago are married and are living in or near Honolulu. We have trained a few to go to more lucrative positions in other schools. At the beginning of the third year, I started with only one of the original force—the assistant housekeeper, a Hawaiian girl of rare ability. The present faculty numbers twelve loyal and true women, who love their work and give their best selves to the school.

We feel that we are called to a glorious work—this helping to mould the characters of the children who are given to us to love and to make strong physically, mentally and morally. And the rewards are infinite and the joys are many.

Following Miss Boshier's account of her school, Miss Mabel Carter sang "Jesus Savior, Pilot Me," in Hawaiian.

Another Contest for Andover and Exeter

Football, baseball, track, tennis, hockey, debating, music, etc., all have their places in the friendly rivalry between Phillips Exeter and Phillips Andover, and if plans which are being entertained at present materialize it looks as if rowing would be added to the above list.

Those interested in the plan are working hard in an endeavor to have the two academies meet in an eight-oared race on the Merrimack river this spring. If a race is arranged it will be the first of its kind ever held between the two schools.

For some time communication has been going on with Professor Ford of Exeter, and prospects seem bright according to reports from the New Hampshire academy.

The Lawrence Canoe club is planning to have a few shells on the river which the Andover boys can use. The only objection at present seems to be that the distance from Andover to the Merrimack river is too far for the students to travel every day.

It is claimed that the course on the Merrimack river is the equal of any course in the country and a meeting between the rival academies should be an interesting and successful affair.

Within six years we have more than doubled our sales.

The reason is that we specialize on prices. People now know that we sell our goods at the lowest possible margin of profit.

We intend to pursue the same policy this year and by constant hammering on these two points—service and low prices—hope to be able to announce at the year's end a gain greater in proportion than we now declare.

A Well Earned Rest

The retirement of Mr. John H. Flint from active work as Treasurer of the Tyer Rubber Company is an incident of more than passing interest to the people of Andover. For forty years he has been one of the strong factors in building the business of the Tyer Rubber Company to its present large proportions. Possessing no intimate acquaintance with the rubber business itself at the outset, Mr. Flint devoted himself to those lines of business activities in which his fine business judgment had an opportunity to show itself effectively. As Treasurer of the Company, his activity has had free rein in directing the varied interests of the business which has grown from an employment of less than fifty operatives when he first took up his work there, to its present proportions where, when both factories are in full swing, probably 700 to 800 will be employed. The same conscientious outlook which has always characterized his view of the different sides of whatever problems were under consideration, has marked all of Mr. Flint's action in managing his particular end of this big business. That the business has been successful is due, to a large degree, to Mr. Flint's judgment, conscientiousness, knowledge of human nature, and confidence in the business standards and business prospects of the country.

Mr. Flint's retirement comes to him at a time when he will be able to enjoy a leisure well earned after his activities of the past forty years. His closest friends believe that his present illness is hardly more than a natural tired feeling such as follows long years of close application to business. The Rubber Company is fortunate in that he will still retain his post of counselor to the young and efficient men with whom he has been surrounded for many years, while to the people at large, there will come much satisfaction in the thought that he will continue as president of the Savings Bank where his fine judgment and interest have been so marked a force during the past ten years, in contributing to the prosperity of that institution and all of its patrons.

Mr. Flint has not only been very prominent in the above activities, but his other interests are large and varied. For a long time he has been a director in the Andover National Bank, the Merrimack Mutual Fire Insurance Company, the Cotton and Woolen Mutual Insurance Company, the Rubber Manufacturers Mutual Insurance Company, and the Rubber Club of America. To all these he has given generously of his time and interest, and his place in them is a prominent one.

Training Boys in Obedience

The initial steps towards forming a sort of local governing body, not only to take more interest in the Boy Scouts' movement, but to help the movement by advice and oversight, were taken during the past week by several men in Andover, who believe the movement is a good thing. The movement is a good thing, and of course, like most good things, needs constant attention to aid it in realizing its best results.

The boy problem doesn't grow any less acute with the succeeding years. The failure of the average youth to appreciate the importance of complete obedience to somebody, is noted more and more as one touches the young life of the present time, and when one reads such a foolish article as that published in one of the Sunday papers of last week, advocating obedience on the part of the parents to the children, it is not very difficult to understand that there are some causes contributing to this condition of things other than the boys and girls themselves. It is mighty good to see interest aroused at the present moment here in Andover in the Boy Scout movement and what that movement is supposed to stand for.

A communication in these columns last week, and another this week, touching upon the recent incident in which a pupil in the public schools has been seriously injured, are evidence of a pretty lively appreciation of the importance of every help in making the boys walk a little closer to the line of obedience. Let us all get hold of this thing, and push it as much as we possibly can, so that we may look upon 1912 as the last year of "drift-away-from-authority" on the part of the rising generation.

A Notable Library Book

A specially interesting book has just been added to the Memorial Hall Library, under the title of "Village Life in America, the Diary of a School Girl, 1852-72." The school girl was Caroline Cowless Richards of Canandaigua, N. Y. She lived in her youth with her grandmother who was a sister of Cyrus Field and the other famous brothers of the Field family, so that many pleasant references are made to them and other familiar names of that period. Its simple, constant glimpses of school life, village life, and life in the time of the civil war, are so natural and interesting that one will scarcely lay down the book until it is finished. Andover has a little part in it too, one of the illustrations selected for the book being a picture of the old clock in Mr. McCurdy's hall on Bartlett street. As originally taken by Mr. Alden, the time was high noon, twelve o'clock, but in the book it is nine o'clock. The author writes

The Railroad and the Students

People interested in low-priced transportation for students who are obliged to rely on railroad trains, are agitated over the revised schedule which takes away some of the advantages of special tickets which have been long in vogue. It is pretty fairly agreed that aid rendered to the bona fide pupil, either in securing for him lower-priced transportation or a lessened fee for tuition, is a step in the right direction, and the railroads have always generously acceded to this view. There is no question but that their generosity has been abused, and there is also no question but that this abuse is largely responsible for the attitude of the railroads in putting this concession in with some others which they have been obliged to cut off. We certainly hope that it will be possible for some arrangement to be made, whereby the worthy student may be helped as he has been for so many years.

There is another side to this question, however, that ought not to be lost sight of. The average man goes before the legislative committee and condemns either the railroad or the railroad commission for approving such a change as has been made by it so that the railroad may legitimately add something to its income. There may have been other arrangements made in the last five years through which railroads might add to their incomes, but if there have been such, we have failed to note them. Every trend in legislation and in commission requirements has been towards the addition of greater burden upon the public service corporations, and in every case this has been accomplished by either a lower rate for the service, or a reaffirmation of existing rates. The railroad goose that lays the golden eggs is pretty nearly dead, and he has been killed by an unreasonable demand of the public, and a foolish attitude of the law-makers, in which both have succeeded in maintaining railroad service as the only service rendered the public which has not added to the high cost of living in the last five years.

We are aware that this is not the sort of stuff that the present-day harum-scarum citizenship wants, and it isn't the sort of stuff wanted because it is true, and because it does give a little justice to one branch of public service that is almost throttled to death at the present time. Just how long legislation, public demand, and commission order, can keep up its present pace of demanding "more, more, more," without giving some compensation or return in the right of adding something to rates is a question. It is not surprising that in the effort to save as much of the wreckage as possible, Massachusetts roads should do everything possible to stop expense and to increase legal revenue. It is a pity that the worthy student has been obliged to suffer in this restricted area of retrenchment, but there is a mighty sight bigger question involved in the readjustment of this matter than that of whether the boys and girls shall pay full price for their school transportation.

Editorial Cinders

The very serious accident resulting in the death of one of the bright boys of Andover, is a shock not only to his own family, but to his mates, and to the wide circle of friends who have known of his good qualities and the fine promise back of him. This is the second accident of the month, attending the spirit of carelessness with which young people often look upon their everyday doings. With the deepest sympathy for the family of the victim, one cannot help hoping that the impress of the whole sad affair may be felt by the other boys in town, who so frequently fail to understand the danger attending the doing of just such things as brought about the death of young Morrill.

It is always interesting to hear of good work being accomplished by an Andoverite, or anyone as intimately connected with the town as is Miss Mabelle E. Boshier, by reason of her relation with Abbot Academy, and we are glad to publish this week the story of her activities at Kawaiahaw Seminary, Honolulu, where she is exercising the same qualities of leadership and resourcefulness which characterized her stay here.

RESIGNS TREASURERSHIP

John H. Flint Gives up Treasurership of Tyer Rubber Co. Frederick H. Jones His Successor

At a meeting of the directors of the Tyer Rubber Company held January 27, John H. Flint, who has been the treasurer and actively engaged in the management of the business for the last thirty years, tendered his resignation, and Frederick H. Jones was elected as his successor. Mr. Flint will continue to act as director and advisor of the Company, but under the advice of his physician, has given up all active work for the present.

The following resolution was adopted upon the acceptance of his resignation:

"In accepting the resignation of Mr. John H. Flint as clerk and treasurer of this Company, the directors of the Tyer Rubber Company do so with great reluctance, knowing that his long service, combined with his sound judgment, far-sightedness and loyalty to their interests has been the most potential factor in the developing and maintaining the success of this Company, and it is the earnest hope of all his associates that his health will soon be restored and he return to the positions he has so ably filled.

"It is ordered that this expression of our regard be spread upon the minutes of this meeting and a copy sent to Mr. Flint."

Gentlemen's Night at November Club

The November club held its annual gentlemen's evening last Monday night at the clubhouse.

The entertainment consisted of three dramatic scenes entitled "Catharine Parr or Alexander's Horse," by Maurice Baring; "The Rule of the Auld Schilp," by Alice Brown. The first two were amusing in their historic incongruities of costume, manners, speech and setting. In the first the parts were taken by Miss Martha Howey as Catharine Parr, Douglas Crawford as Henry VIII, and Ludwig Moorehead as a page. An imaginary breakfast quarrel ensued which nearly resulted in Catharine's head following those of her predecessors.

The second was the heroic self-sacrifice of Iphigenia. Mrs. W. H. Lillard as Iphigenia, John Phillips as Agamemnon, her "papa," Mrs. Phillips as Electra, her "mamma," Robert Keep as Ulysses, Mr. Lillard as Calcas, and Mrs. Keep as "maid."

The third scene was in an old ladies' home, Mrs. McCurdy being the rheumatic old woman who complacently monopolizes the sunniest window and best rocker; Miss Lucia Merrill, her roommate, who demanded her rights and settled the matter by enforcing a boundary of ownership in their room; and Mrs. Percival Dove, the philanthropic visitor.

The novel "curtain" added to the amusement and informality. Seven young ladies, each bearing a letter of the word curtain on her head, stood in a row back to the audience while the "scene-shifting" went on. At the close of the entertainment the name of some notable person was pinned on the back of each guest, for the wearer to guess by the conversation directed to him. The evening ended with refreshments and dancing.

Ladies' Night at Men's Club

The Men's club of the South Church will hold their annual ladies' night on Friday evening, February 7, at 7:45 o'clock, in the church vestry.

The speaker of the evening will be Douglas Crawford, on the Bulgarian war. As this subject is of vital interest at the present time, and as Mr. Crawford was born in and has been closely associated with this part of the world all his life, his talk cannot help but be very interesting. Mr. Crawford's father is at present located as a missionary near the Black Sea.

Music for the evening will be furnished by Miss Cynthia Flint and J. Everett Collins, accompanied by Frederick G. Moore.

All those who consider this church their home church are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

A Council for the Boy Scouts

A well-attended meeting was held at the Baptist church last Monday evening in the interests of the Boy Scout organization.

For some time past, several patrols of Scouts have been maintained in the various churches of the town, and satisfactory results have been obtained, but in order to insure more organized work and more efficient supervision, a committee consisting of Bartlett H. Hayes, Perley Gilbert and Jessie Billington called together a meeting of some of the prominent citizens of the town, to take action upon the formation of a local council. The duties pertaining to the council are to appoint the Scout Master of the various patrols, to award merit badges and honors, and to have a general oversight over the work of the organization. Its existence does not, however, affect the individual organization or activity of any patrol, but simply plans for its advancement as part of the whole.

On Monday evening a temporary organization was formed with Rev. W. E. Lombard as chairman and F. H. Foster as secretary. A committee was also appointed to frame a constitution and to bring in at the next meeting a list of nominations for officers.

The evening was made still more interesting and instructive by an address given by Mr. Loomis of Boston, a well-known worker in the Boy Scouts' organization.

JUMPED TO HIS DEATH

Swasey Morrill, 17-year-old Punctured Boy, Dies After Leap From Freight Train

The entire community was greatly shocked on Tuesday morning to hear of the death, resulting from a fall from a freight train the preceding evening, of Swasey LeRoy Morrill, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Morrill of West Andover, and a prominent member of the Punctured School.

Upon the opening of the new Colonial Theatre on Essex street last week, the boy had been employed as an usher, and it was after the last performance on Monday evening, as he was on his way home, that the fatal accident occurred. Together with his friend, Freeman Abbott of Ballardvale, also an usher at the theatre, he proceeded to the railroad station, and as a freight train passed through, boarded it alone, leaving his friend behind. When the train reached Abbott's bridge at Central street, he jumped to the ground, missed his footing, and fell, probably striking his head against a rail, with the result that he received internal injuries. Not realizing his condition, he determined to proceed, and finally reached home, a distance of over a mile, shortly after eleven o'clock. Medical aid was at once secured, and everything possible done, but all to no avail, death ensuing twelve hours later as the result of cerebral hemorrhages.

Swasey Morrill was born in Andover, and for several years lived with his parents at West Andover center in the house now occupied by Frank H. Hardy. The family later moved to Lowell, where they resided for some time, and where Swasey attended the Lowell High School. In 1911 they returned to Andover, making their home on the Jesse Clark place on Argilla road.

Having just passed his seventeenth birthday, but strong, capable and a natural leader among his mates, young Morrill was one of the most popular members of the Junior class at the Punctured School, where he had distinguished himself both in scholarship and in other lines of school activity during the two years in which he had been a student there. He was a halfback on the Punctured football squad last fall, and won for his class the boy's prize in the Goldsmith contest in December.

Besides his parents, he is survived by one sister, Marjory, and two brothers, Stanwood and Byron.

The funeral was held at the family home at two o'clock on Thursday afternoon, Rev. Dean A. Walker officiating. A large number of the schoolmates of the deceased were present as well as relatives and friends. Burial was in the West cemetery.

MRS. ROSA E. WEST

Mrs. Rosa E. West, wife of John P. West of this town, passed away at the family home on Florence street on Tuesday afternoon, January 28, after several years of ill health and a more recent illness of a few weeks' duration. The deceased was fifty-eight years of age.

Mrs. West was born in Maine, but had been a resident of Andover for nearly twenty years. During that time, her quiet, unassuming ways and sweet Christian character won for her many friends and acquaintances. For several years she had been a member of the Free church.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, John P. West; three daughters, Mrs. Fred Swanton and Miss Florence West, both of Andover, and Mrs. Gayton Abbott of Somerville; one son, Jesse West, two sisters, Mrs. John Anderson and Mrs. Nellie Drake, both of Somerville; three brothers, Henry, William and Charles Clarke, all of East Boston.

The funeral was held this afternoon at two o'clock at the late home. Rev. F. A. Wilson conducted the services, assisted by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow. Burial was in Spring Grove cemetery.

LYMAN ALONZO BELKNAP

The passing of Lyman Alonzo Belknap, in the seventy-seventh year of his life, this week at the home of his daughter in Westboro, removed from the life and interests of Andover a man who, although not an actual resident of the town at the time of his death, was intimately connected with it by reason of the many years in which he lived here.

Mr. Belknap's death occurred on Monday, January 27, following an unsuccessful operation. He had been in poor health for the past year, since the death of his eldest son last January.

Born in Westboro, the son of Lyman Belknap, he early entered upon a business life, succeeding his father in the management of a large wholesale provision business when a young man. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce and of the Fruit and Produce Exchange in Boston, and his life and business relations in that city won for him an honorable record among all his acquaintances and associates.

At one time he was a member of the Lancers, and of the Ancient and Honorary Artillery Company, and he also belonged to the St. John lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Boston.

For several years he resided in Dorchester, and when that town became part of Boston, Mr. Belknap became interested in city affairs, and held several minor offices of an honorary character, as member of the Common Council and of boards and commissions having charge of municipal activities.

Together with his family, Mr. Belknap came to Andover about thirty years ago and resided for some time in the house now occupied by Geo. H. Torr, later building the residence now owned by Frederick H. Jones. At all times he took an active interest in the affairs of the town, and upon his removal to Boston some ten years ago, he still retained his citizenship here.

He is survived by his widow, one son, John, and two daughters, Mrs. Grace W. Bates of Westboro, and Maud. His elder son, Lyman, died in 1912.

The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon with burial in the family lot at Westboro.

South Church Parish Meeting

The annual meeting of the South church parish was held on Thursday evening.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

Moderator, Frederick H. Jones.
Clerk, George S. Minor.
Assessors, John V. Holt, David Shaw, Charles J. Francis.
Treasurer, Phillip R. French.
Collector, O. W. Vennard.
Auditors, J. H. Melledge, Frederick H. Jones.

The report of the treasurer, Phillip R. French, was read and accepted. It showed the total receipts, including a loan of $325, to be $3,059.69, and the cash available at the present time $29.26. The special music fund for the year amounted to $456.32.

A special committee was appointed to meet with a committee of the church to consider the feasibility of extensive alterations in the church building and to report to the next annual meeting.

Justice for the Indian

A very interesting article entitled "Still Plundering the Indian," written by Professor Warren K. Moorehead, appeared in the Wednesday evening issue of the Boston Transcript. In it he discusses at length the deplorable frauds from which the Indians in the West have been and are still suffering, the tardiness of justice and the crying need for better laws.

In summing up his article Prof. Moorehead says:

"Finally, I present in condensed form what seems to me to be a practicable solution of the affair. A continuation of the policy we have in force today will end in disaster.

"First, the Indian should be absolutely protected in his property rights by a thirty-five years' restriction, thus preventing sale or mortgage.

"Second, all competent Indians should be released as rapidly as possible from this restriction.

"Third, the United States Indian Office should be absolutely divorced from politics.

"Fourth, there should be at least a million dollars appropriated to stamp out tuberculosis, trachoma and other diseases.

"Fifth, the United States Board of Indian Commissioners should be given a sufficient appropriation in order that it may take over the supervision of Indian affairs.

"Sixth, if the Congress does not see fit to increase the present inadequate appropriation for the Board of Indian Commissioners, it should establish a national commission of seven or nine men—a commission similar to that of the Interstate Commerce Board. This commission should be composed of the best available men without regard to political affiliations, who should take over the entire management of Indian affairs and devote their entire energies to this great and humane work."

Commenting upon the article the Transcript says editorially:

Warren K. Moorehead's special article in the Transcript today, detailing the wholesale plunder of the Indian that persists in spite of general public belief to the contrary, speaks for itself. But a word may well be spoken for Mr. Moorehead himself. For over thirty years he has been a student of Indian matters and a sturdy fighter for the Indian's rights. It is not widely known, but it is the truth, that Commissioner Moorehead is largely responsible for many reforms in Indian administration that have been secured. For years Mr. Moorehead has been gathering first hand evidence of graft in Indian lands, and has at his command thousands of papers, letters and documents in proof. A good deal of this evidence has come directly from the Indians themselves, who trust him and appreciate his efforts in their behalf. The obstacles in his way were not always official credulity. Parties interested in land or timber companies affected by his evidence have frequently massed their influence against him through the "Washington subway." If he has been at times intensely partisan, his prejudices have been overwhelmingly on the side of justice, and his recommendations command earnest and immediate consideration.

The Pond at the Park

To the Editor of the Townsman.

Dear Sir: There is one item of town business which I think should be attended to at the coming town meeting—the pond in the park.

The park is growing more beautiful every year and being more used by the citizens. Summer afternoons mothers with their babies come from quite a distance and enjoy the shade and coolness near the pond. But when the pond dries up there is left in the center of our park a blot and a disgrace. The brook will supply the pond amply for ten months out of twelve but during the hottest part of the summer there should be water supplied to keep the pond full and fresh.

In order to do this not much water is needed but the pond needs to be cleaned out and cemented. This will involve another matter as the new drain from the Playstead is at such a level that the pond must be lower than its old level. If the whole brook could be lowered according to a careful survey which would give a pitch sufficient to carry off the water in time of greatest flood it would be a great boon to all the housekeepers from Bartlett street up to Carter's hill.

Before anything more is done to the pond the proper level should be determined so that it would not interfere with the perfect draining from the Playstead. The old dam was built one foot higher than the park commissioners planned and had to be torn out.

The pond is fast filling up and will have to be dug out. A plan which seems feasible would be to cement the whole pond leaving it low enough for proper draining of the brook above. Make a basin that would slope from a few inches deep at the upper end to about a foot and a half deep at the lower end. Provide a small fountain so that the water could be kept fresh, when the brook did not furnish enough flow. Build a step around the present wall so that the children could get down and sail boats and wade in the water in the summer and have a safe skating pond for little folks in the winter. This basin could be easily closed each spring and would be an ornament and delight the year round. The cost would be very small compared with the benefit and improvement in the beauty of the park. Five hundred dollars would put the pond into good condition that would be permanent.

Where can the town spend that amount in a way that will bring real benefit and pleasure to more people?

Yours truly,
W. E. LOMBARD

Communication

The Sons of Veterans met in regular session last Friday evening, Commander Gilbert in the chair. After the regular business had been disposed of, under the Good of the Order the celebration of the Emancipation Proclamation was taken up. By the way, this camp is the only society of its kind to make any recognition of this event and the boys naturally and rightfully too feel that their efforts should have received some recognition. The indifference of the G. A. R. Post and the people of this town to the efforts that the boys of this Camp have put forth in the line of patriotic instruction is amazing and almost beyond belief! The two brothers who prepared the lectures, spent considerable time in preparing them and it does seem that they should have had a larger number of patriotic citizens than they did to listen to their efforts. As it was, there was only one person, a G. A. R. man, who was interested enough to attend, and he was the only visitor.

Commander Gilbert gave an interesting account of the events leading up to and including the Battle of Antietam, which was followed by an instructive and entertaining paper on the Emancipation Proclamation by Rev. Brother A. H. Fuller.

We sincerely hope and trust that when we next invite the public to our Camp, there will be a more generous response. The next meeting of the Camp will be held Friday evening, February 14. Brothers please take notice!

G. W. GILBERT
Camp Correspondent

It was unfortunate, Mr. Commander, that your audience was so limited, but was the public properly notified of the meeting, and the occasion of it sufficiently emphasized? Were the G. A. R. veterans specially invited to attend, or was any recent notice of the gathering sent to the Townsman or any other newspaper? —Ed.]

Communication

Dear Mr. Editor:

The communication in last week's Townsman on the manners of the rising generation compels me to say a word for the children, God bless 'em, and this I can do impartially as I have no young children nor am I a doting grandmother.

I frequently go to Reading on the eight o'clock car and enjoy doing so as it is a delight to see the eager faces of the boys and girls on their way to school, the latter with shining braids and fresh hair ribbons—isn't it surprising how few soiled or crumpled ones are seen? I have yet to notice any behavior unbecoming to children. To me they are far more interesting than the women bargain hunters and the fierce-eyed men eager for graft who occupy the seats in the car.

This very morning my way took me past a group of small boys playing ball. With a pleasant smile the one nearest me said, "Wait till the lady passes," and this isn't the first time either that the growing lads have protected me in this way. Farther down the street I met a man who didn't think it worth the trouble to remove from his mouth a very ill-smelling pipe, and two well-dressed women soon appeared chewing gum, presumably. Oh! the manners of the children, allowing for the exuberance of youth, compare favorably with those of their elders. I know one small boy who if he sees me on his way home from school leaves his playmates and escorts me to my home, entertaining me with school gossip. I grant this is unusual, but unusual things form one of the charms of childhood. The children haven't been run in a mould as yet. So take courage, patient, plodding parents, and sometimes when you can't sleep just run over in your minds the far-off days when you saw the world with young eyes.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Songs

A few weeks ago, C. H. A., your Genealogical Antiquarian correspondent had an article in the Townsman calling in question my statement that this country had few songs between the prayer meeting hymn and the hanky-panky kind not fit for fireside singing. C. H. A. quotes many fine poems to refute my statement. No one who has read the literature of this country, but has been delighted with these American songs and poems, yet the fewness of the songs written by Americans that are sung at our social gatherings is a standing proof of my assertion.

This country is young and as it grows older will likely give more attention to the old ballads and less attention to fashionable dances and card playing. I do not wonder at the great statesman's statement when he said that a country's songs had more to do with the making of a great people than legislative enactments. The nation feels the influence of the songs that it has learned to lip in infancy.

The authors of our Scottish songs were not great men in the estimation of what the world calls great. Few statesmen have had brains enough to compose a song. I mention a few of our Scottish song writers—Tannahill was a poor handloom weaver, yet his songs "Gloomy Winter's noo awa" and "Jessie, the flower o' Dunblane" and a dozen others are dear to every Scottish heart.

Robert Nicol, who was a poor working lad and died when he was 22, left as a legacy some beautiful songs. If he had left us nothing but "Bonnie Bessie Lee" and "Janet McBean" his memory would have been cherished. Many of our finest songs have been composed by clergymen; the Rev. Norman McLeod, Queen Victoria's favorite Scottish chaplain wrote some grand songs. His few verses about the servant lassie in London as she lay on her death bed far from native Highland home will live after all his sermons are forgotten. I quote one stanza:

"The title of the song is, 'It's hard to dee frae hame.' After a verse telling them that they had all been kind to her she says:

"I see the hoose, the loch, the boat, The kye my mither's pride, There wasna sic a bonny place In a' the country side."

When Norman was commanded to preach at Cathie Presbyterian kirk he was also commanded to dine and sleep at Balmoral castle, the late King Edward and his sister, the late Empress of Germany, mother of the present versatile Emperor, were then little children and Norman being fond of bairns was a great favorite with the Queen's children. He took the little boy, Edward, on his knee and sang:

"Where ha'e ye been a' this day, Bonnie Laddie, Heilan' Laddie?"

Then he did the same thing to the little girl and sang:

"Hey bonnie Lassie blenk over the burn, And if your sheep wander, I'll gie them a turn. And we'll be sae happy in yonder green shade, If ye'll be my dawty and sit in my plaid."

The joke on the clergyman was that the children told their mother that they liked that clergyman who had no buttons on his trousers. I think it was that genial Christian gentleman, Dean Stanley who was on a visit to Balmoral castle who got this rebuff from the children and enjoyed it immensely.

The late Professor Blaikie, the great Greek scholar, always spent his holidays in the Highlands of Scotland and often preached at the parish kirk. They told Blaikie that at the evening service few people attended. Blaikie said, "Well, we will fill your kirk, just let it be known that I will sing a Gaelic song before the regular service begins."

The church was crowded as it had never been before—scarcely standing room, and Professor Blaikie kept his promise and sang two of "Ossian's" old Gaelic songs with scarcely a dry eye in that crowd as they heard in their native tongue the songs their mither sang. Perhaps some of our musical clergymen might try Professor Blaikie's plan to fill their kirks.

Another clergyman, Rev. Mr. Wilson, parish minister of Kilsyth, left for us a "bit lit" of a song that has cheered many a weary pilgrim viz: "Alistair McAlister." I give the first stanza:

"Oh Alistair McAlister, Your chanter sets us a' astir, Get out your pipes and blaw an' berr We'll dance the hieland fling."

Sir Walter Scott, when he wrote "Jock o' Hazeldean," perhaps did not know that he had left us one of the finest songs ever written.

I do not think that anything I ever read beats the description of the utter uselessness of trying to change the whim of a wilful woman than "Jock o' Hazeldean."

I cannot close this letter without saying something about Lady Nairne and the exquisite songs she left as a legacy to Scotland. Her "Land o' the Leal," often erroneously ascribed to Robert Burns is one of the finest songs ever written.

"There's nae sorrow there, Jean, There's neither could nor care, Jean The day is aye fair

In the land o' the leal."

* * * * *

Then dry that glist'nin' e'e, Jean, My soul longs to be free, Jean, And angels wait on me

To the land o' the leal."

And we are all hastening on to the "Land o' the Leal."

GOVERNORS OF NEW ENGLAND

Plan to Solve the Railroad Transportation Problem

COMMISSION OF TWELVE MEN

Two Experts From Each State May Submit Recommendations In Time For Their Consideration by Legislatures Now In Session—No Salaries, but Expenses Will Be Paid

Boston, Jan. 27.—At the end of a conference in this city lasting nearly five hours the five New England governors present agreed upon the appointment of an unpaid commission, to be made up of two citizens from each state, to make an inquiry into whole subject of railroad development and operation in the New England states.

No expression was taken as to the attitude of the governors on any matter of railroad policy. They went no further than to agree to get all the information possible and to suggest topics for specific study. The result of the investigation will be transmitted to each of the governors for the information of himself and of the legislature of his state.

Governor Foss' suggestion for the creation of a permanent commission to be composed of the chairmen of the commissions that regulate transportation in each state and for state appointed directors of the railroads were included among the topics to be inquired into.

While the conference confined its discussion to matters affecting New England as a whole, the situation in Boston was held to be of vital importance in the solution of the railroad problem. The abolition of the Boston Railroad Holding company, connection of the New Haven and Boston and Maine by tunnel or belt line and the electrification of the terminals in this city were among the subjects specially mentioned for study.

The governors were agreed that there should be an early report, and they expect the recommendations may be made in time for their consideration by the legislatures now in session. To accomplish this it is proposed to appoint as members of the conference men who are familiar with the transportation situation.

The only absentee from the conference was Governor Haines of Maine, who sent his regrets that, owing to illness, he was unable to attend. Governor Baldwin of Connecticut, by reason of seniority, was invited to preside. The conference opened with a lunch, served in room 130 at The Touraine. No one was present except the five governors while railroad matters were discussed.

Following is the vote passed by the conference:

"Voted, that the governor of each New England state be requested to appoint two citizens of his state as members of a New England railroad conference to consider and report on the best modes of developing and operating the New England railroad system; the members of said conference to serve without compensation, but their necessary expenses to be paid by the state appointing them."

A copy of these resolutions was telegraphed to Haines for his consideration.

MAINE NOT INTERESTED

Will Not Take Active Part in New England Railroad Commission

Boston, Jan. 28.—Governor Foss received from Governor Haines of Maine a letter in which the latter takes up, item by item, the ideas of the five other New England governors on the railroad situation, and puts forth his own views as the chief executive of the Pine Tree State.

Owing to the fact that Maine has no special interest in the railroad situation which is stirring the rest of this section Haines will hold aloof from taking active part in the New England railroad commission for which the others voted at their conference here.

Whether Haines meant to be sarcastic or merely was playing for a joke in some instances appears uncertain, but he brought out in a rather unfavorable light tender spots in the Massachusetts situation.

THORPE A PROFESSIONAL

Hero of Olympics Must Return Trophies He Won at Stockholm

New York, Jan. 28.—James Thorpe, the Indian athlete and Olympic champion, admits that the charge of professionalism brought against him is true, and has formally retired from amateur athletics. Thorpe's confession was contained in a letter to the registration committee of the Amateur Athletic union, which met here to investigate his case.

The letter admitted Thorpe had played baseball for a salary on a professional team three years ago while he was a student of the Carlisle Indian school.

Thorpe's winning of the Pentathlon and Decathlon events at the Olympic games in Stockholm and his performances which won for him the all-round championship of the A. A. U. had stamped him the most marvelous all-around athlete of modern times.

All the prizes and the honors which Thorpe has gained since 1909—the date from which his standing as a professional begins—must be transferred to the men who finished second to the Indian in every event.

OPENS FUND FOR SICKLES

Sulzer Makes an Appeal to Save General From His Trouble

Albany, Jan. 29.—Governor Sulzer offered to contribute $100 to a fund to be raised to pay the $23,476 unaccounted for by General Daniel K. Sickles, as chairman of the New York monument commission. The state has begun an action to recover this money and secured an order for the general's arrest.

"No one regrets more than I do the sad predicament of the hero of Gettysburg," said the governor. "I believe that patriotic America will respond quickly and that in a week the amount necessary can be raised. It would be a fine testimonial in the name of gratitude for all the people owe to a great hero."

When she faced her husband in court she pleaded with him to take her back, and on her promise to forget her handsome affinity the court allowed her husband to pay a fine of $25 for her and they left the courtroom together.

BOSTON

"The Garden of Allah," which is attracting record-breaking audiences at the Boston theatre, entered upon the third week Monday evening, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. The play follows closely not only the story but the atmosphere of Hitchens's novel.

PLYMOUTH

George Arliss in "Disraeli" is nearing the end of his engagement. The play has already established the season's record run as well as having scored the biggest dramatic hit in years. In fact no play in the past decade has gripped the attention of local theatre-goers as has Parker's delightful comedy.

TREMONT

"Milestones," the quaint and charming comedy-drama, has fairly captured Boston theatre-goers. It is pre-eminently a "repeat" play. Its charms grow steadily with better acquaintance and during the two weeks of the engagement at the Tremont, hundreds of play-goers have witnessed the delightful drama.

COLONIAL

Ching Ling Foo, greatest of all magicians, and his company of fourteen Chinese, are appearing with the "Ziegfeld Follies" at the Colonial theatre. Boston theatre-goers are having an opportunity to see what New York has branded the most wonderful act on the American stage.

ST. JAMES

Miss Grace Elliston has chosen Rachel Crothers's comedy, "The Three of Us" for the second play in which to appear in during her visiting star engagement at the St. James theatre.

CASTLE SQ.

The second week of "Believe Me, Xantippe!" Mr. Craig's Harvard prize play, began at the Castle Square on Monday. It has made a laughing success at every performance of its opening week, and it is proving itself one of the liveliest and most humorous of recent dramas.

LAWRENCE

Quindaro lodge 32, K. of P., held a public installation of officers Monday evening in Black Prince hall.

Dr. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, gave an illustrated lecture in Lexington hall, Monday night under Socialist auspices on the topic, "The March of Toilers."

Pursuing the policy of inspecting crowded tenements at night, the members of the board of health Monday night visited a number of tenement houses and one bakery shop.

The eighth annual dancing party of the Lawrence Commercial School pupils and alumni was held Monday night in Truell hall. The party was a great success in every way.

Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., president of Boston college, entertained an audience that overflowed St. Mary's hall last Sunday night with his popular lecture on the "French Revolution."

The annual meeting of the Merrimack Valley Country club was held at the club house Monday evening. The election of officers took place and the various committees made their reports.

The first amalgamated meeting of Lawrence council, 67, and St. Mary's council, 559, now known as Lawrence council, 67, was held Monday evening in St. Mary's hall and the election of officers took place.

The annual concert and ball of Lawrence lodge, 65, B. P. O. E., will be held next Monday evening at the city hall. The preparations that are being made are extensive and no expense is being spared.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Randlett of 33 Milton street were accorded a reception at their home Sunday by the parishioners of the Free Baptist church, the occasion being the 25th anniversary of their wedding.

The annual installation of the officers-elect of Olive commandery, 19, U. O. G. C., was held Saturday evening in Mayflower hall, the work of induction being ably performed by Deputy Grand Commander Nathan Matthews and suite of Lowell.

To provide work for the unemployed of the city a movement was put under way at last evening's regular meeting of the city council to begin work immediately on a sewerage system for the drainage of the western portion of Tower Hill.

In the presence of a large gathering including delegations from Needham and General Lawton posts of the G. A. R., Col. L. D. Sargent camp, Sons of Veterans, the Women's Relief corps and the Daughters of Veterans, the boys' work committee of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A., presented the Lawrence division of the Boy Scouts of America with a handsome silk American flag at the Y. M. C. A. building Monday night.

PARK

There is no diminution in the popular favor aroused by "The Woman" as played by David Belasco's company at the Park theatre, and the fifth week of the engagement opened in the most auspicious fashion Monday evening.

SHUBERT

Robert B. Mantell will open the second week of his engagement at the Shubert theatre, Boston, next Monday, with his first Boston performance of Louis XI from the French of Casimir Delavigne. Mr. Mantell is the first actor to play this part since the late Sir Henry Irving. Louis was considered by a number of Irving's admirers his masterpiece. The physical transformation of Mr. Mantell from an actor of heroic physique in such parts as Macbeth and Othello, to the shrivelled, deformed Louis is said to be very remarkable.

"Julius Caesar" is the only other play in Mr. Mantell's second week's repertoire that was not included in the first. It will be presented Tuesday and Friday evenings. Of the three roles worthy of stellar interpretation, Mr. Mantell has chosen to play Brutus, as the most sympathetic. The production of "Julius Caesar" is the most elaborate Mr. Mantell carries.

The other plays of the week are "Richelieu," Wednesday afternoon; "Macbeth," Wednesday evening; "Othello," Thursday evening; "The Merchant of Venice," Saturday afternoon, and "Macbeth" again on Saturday evening.

MAJESTIC

Surpassing the keenest expectations, the much talked of Scottish comedy, "Bunt Pulls the Strings," at the Majestic theatre, has caught the favor of theatre-goers, not only in Boston, but throughout all New England.

Although this is the original New York company, a special scale of prices prevails for this engagement, the highest price in the evening being $1.50 and the best seats at the Wednesday matinees being offered at $1.00.

This truly delightful picture of simple Scottish life carries with it an appeal that is irresistible, with the result that not only is the audience refreshed by something absolutely novel in the form of dramatic entertainment, but immensely pleased by sparkling comedy splendidly acted.

One need not be familiar with the Scotch dialect, nor possessed of Scottish sympathies to appreciate this most engaging performance. While much of the humor may properly be described as subtle, one needs only to have a human heart and a human mind to appreciate this play thoroughly.

METHUEN

The executive committee of the Methuen Good Government association met Friday night with Alfred C. Gaunt and elected officers.

The work on the French parochial school on Lowell street is progressing rapidly and it is expected that the work will be completed in a few weeks so that school may be opened.

The annual meeting of the members of the Christian League of Methuen will be held at the Methodist church in Railroad square on Sunday evening, February 16, at 6.30 o'clock.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church in Methuen last Sunday Rev. Otis Cole of Haverhill was the speaker and took for his topic, "The Wireless of the Personal Influence."

Thomas J. Doran, assistant engineer of the Methuen fire department, and a member of the Ector jury, which recently sat at Salem, received a fractured leg while at work Saturday morning.

Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. McKee in the Hampshire roads district, a social was held under the auspices of the members of the Third Primitive Methodist Sunday school.

Burton Holmes Breaks All Records Twice

History is certainly repeating itself, in the case of Burton Holmes and his Travelogues on the Panama Canal. In Chicago he gave it seven times, his fourth "extra" being larger than the first in dollars and cents, all however, to capacity business. In Philadelphia, at the Academy of Music, six presentations tell the same story, while Milwaukee, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Washington and Cleveland, have demanded one or more "extras," on this popular subject. Mr. Holmes opened his Eastern series in New York, Boston and Brooklyn, with "The West Indies," breaking all his records for "openings," and in Carnegie Hall, New York, breaking his highest record of last season, the highest mark attained by any regular lecturer on Travel. With "Panama," however, given twice in Boston, twice in New York, and twice in Brooklyn, he has so far eclipsed any and all of his former records, even that of "The Passion Play," which formerly held the palm as a money-getter, as to make even his former largest houses dwindle into comparative insignificance. He is still to give further "Panama extras" in Chicago, St. Louis and Philadelphia, while the prospects of many extras on this subject in the East, threaten to seriously encroach on his coming summer's travels in search of new material.

In the Days of Your Grandmother

No doubt you remember, as a child, the simple but effective remedies that your mother or your grandmother used to give you when you weren't feeling well. No matter what the trouble might be, her little potions were pretty sure to hit the mark and restore you to a normal condition. All of which serves to illustrate how much virtue there is in many of the old-fashioned preparations.

We don't hear so much nowadays about the medicines of grandmother's days. One preparation, however, can be mentioned that has been a household word for more than a hundred years. It owes its long life and widely increasing popularity to just one thing—merit. The name of this preparation is Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. The quickness with which it relieves many internal and external ailments is nothing short of remarkable.

If you have a sprain, a wrenched knee, or ankle, a lame back, sore muscles, lumbago, stiff joints, muscular rheumatism, Johnson's Anodyne Liniment will give quick relief.

Taken internally, a few drops on sugar, it is equally effective in relieving coughs, hard colds, sore throat, catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, cramps, etc.

Tell your druggist you want Johnson's Anodyne Liniment and not any other kind. 25c. a bottle. Large bottle 50c.—Adv.

NORTH ANDOVER

The Young Men's Catholic club will give their long-anticipated show in Merrimack hall Friday night.

Under the auspices of the Women's Alliance of the Old North church, there was a silver social and musical whist Thursday evening in the vestry.

There will be a whist party Friday evening, February 7, in Odd Fellows hall under the auspices of Court Lincoln, A. O. F. Suitable prizes are to be awarded.

There was a numerous attendance and an enjoyable time at the whist party, held Friday evening in Odd Fellows hall, under the management of Waverly Circle, A. O. F.

One year ago Saturday morning, the thermometers hereabouts averaged from 16 to 18 degrees below zero. On Friday and Saturday farmers were engaged in plowing.

A man arrested by Officers Otto Ruhl and John P. Walsh, Saturday evening for drunkenness was arraigned before Judge Frye Monday morning and fined five dollars. The defendant paid.

Mrs. Charles E. Murray and daughters, S. Elizabeth and Miriam Murray, of Salem, have been visiting at the residence of Calvin Sykes, Swans Corner, corner of Boxford and Foster streets, in the Kimball district.

PYRAMID OF GIZEH NO LONGER ENIGMATIC.

Unexpected Conclusions.

The very stones of the Great Pyramid of Gizeh are crying out in no uncertain tones. Every inch of the massive structure, with unerring precision, reveals the solutions to problems which for centuries civilized nations have spent fabulous sums in vain to find and which men of science have encountered hardships to analyze.

This wonderful testimony of the Great Stone Witness, with its general description and storehouse of Truth, scientific, historic and prophetic, with Bible allusions to it, the importance of its location and verifications of astronomical and geographical deductions, is an extensive chapter of a volume which may be obtained by sending 35 cents to the Watch Tower Society, 17 Hicks Street, Brooklyn.

Andover Club Defeated

The Andover club met a serious defeat at the hands of the North Andover club last evening in the clubhouse of the latter organization. The score was ten points to three, Andover securing two in whist and one in bowling, while the North Andover boys won three in pool, three in billiards, three in bowling and one in whist. Perhaps the best contest of the evening was that in billiards between Reid of North Andover and Brown of Andover. The former won, 75 to 74. Andover succeeded in winning the greatest number of tables in whist, but lost the total score by twenty points.

In bowling, Cole of Andover won the highest single string with 116, and Kirk of North Andover had the highest total, 283.

ning to Alexander Ryley, son of Mr.

dress, was attended by her sister, Miss Jessie Lowe, while the best man was Raymond Lilley of Law-couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents, including cut

CORRECT WAY TO TREAT HEMORRHOIDS

New York Physician Says Local Treatment Alone Won't Do,
and Tells Why.

If you are distressed with Hemorrhoids, or what are commonly called Piles, pay your druggist a visit to-day.

Ask him to show you the ENGLISH HEMORRHOID TREATMENT, which is a simple and efficient home treatment that gives immediate relief and later causes this distressing malady to disappear.

The ENGLISH HEMORRHOID
TREATMENT is based on the experience of a well-known New York physician during many years of practice.

In the package that your pharmacist will hand you are three boxes. In one box you will find suppositories that quickly banish pain and soothe the inflamed condition.

In another box an antiseptic ointment —wonderful in its healing properties. It quickly allays itching and irritation, and last, but by no means least, is a box of tablets to be taken internally. They are expressly compounded to put the entire system in such splendid condition that the corrective work of the other remedies will be made easier. Should one remedy be exhausted before the others, you can replenish at 50 cents per box.

Every sufferer in this vicinity should remember that the ENGLISH HEMOR-RHOID TREATMENT is for home use, and that simple instructions easily followed come with every treatment.

There is no secret about the treatment;
the formula is on every package, and any sincere physician or druggist will tell you that it is worthy of his recommendation.
All druggists have been directed to refund the purchase price to any person who has not obtained decided results after giving a fair trial.

An interesting booklet on Hemorrhoids can be obtained at drug store counters or direct by mail from ENGLISH PHAR-MACAL LABORATORIES, INC., No.
1531 Broadway, New York.

To Present "The Fighting Chance"

The T. W. T. club of the South church are busily preparing for the presentation of their play which will be given in the church vestry on Tuesday evening, February 18. The title of the piece, which is a threeact comedy, bright and entertaining, is "The Fighting Chance."

The scene of the play is laid at a Southern boarding school situated just below the Mason and Dixon line, and the action is supposed to take place in 1862 when feeling was running high over the struggle between the North and South.

The cast is composed entirely of the girls of the club who can be relied upon to furnish an excellent evening's entertainment.

The cast of characters is as follows:

Madame Mayburne, principal of the school Margaret Keane
Mlle. Fordet, instructor in French Florence Mears
Eleanor Hamilton, a new arrival Margaret M. Rogers
Ruth Anna Morton, a Quakeress Marion Dearborn
Helen Hastings Lizzie Cole

Madeline Burgson, troubled with English but never with insomnia hatred for "niggers" Grace Stevens

Abbot Academy Catalogue

The responses to the request in last week's issue for clues to early Abbot Academy students were so helpful that some other problems are again brought forward.

Middle names are wanted of Ann
W. Swett and Ann W. Evans (Mrs.
Steiner), Hannah S. Lee (Mrs. Wm.
Stickney, daughter of David Lee), Mary Ann D. Allen (Mrs. Arthur N.
Bean).

Has anyone been able to think of any Hannah Brown (besides Mrs.
Mayberry, and Dea. Abraham Gould's sister-in-law) who would have been of the right age to be in school in 1829. Some pupils then were quite young, for there was a primary department, and some were over 20.

Nothing has yet been learned of the following, all in school about 1835: Louisa Pratt, Rebecca M. Wilson, Sophia S. Allen, or Charlotte
M. Abbott (who married William G.
Towne, and lived in Newtonville at one time).

Any suggestions will be gratefully received by the compiler of the catalogue. Please address or telephone
Miss Jane B. Carpenter, 26 Morton Street, Andover.

Natural History Fagot Party

The members of the Natural History society were entertained on Friday evening of last week at the home of Mrs. Joseph W. Smith on Central street.

The party, numbering over thirty,
gathered in the library of Mrs.
Smith's hospitable home, around the open fireplace, and spent the evening very pleasantly in telling stories and indulging in reminiscences of old-time happenings and events. As each fresh fagot was placed on the fire, some guest would add his contribution to the evening's stories. In this manner the time sped quickly by in one of the most enjoyable gatherings which the society has held for some time.

The Royals' Dance

The fourth annual dancing party of the Royals was held in the town hall last Friday evening. The affair was largely attended, about 300 young people being present. Music chestra.

Those in charge of the affair were:
W. J. Morrissey, floor director; W.
O'Connell, assistant floor director;
aids, Charles Bowman, Everett Collins, James Berry, George Buchan, George Donovan, Edward O'Connell.
